"En plein air" at dawn on the road to Los Alamos.

Armature: Dynamic Symmetry Armature plus the Fibonacci Spiral. Dawn - Los Alamos was planned explicitly to follow the Dynamic Symmetry Armature plus the Golden Spiral. The dramatic contrast at dawn of the left cliff and the sky was painted at the upper left polar point, the eye of the spiral. The edge of the right cliff parallels the Baroque Diagonal, while the edge of the left cliff leads down along the Sinister Diagonal.
